You're the Cream in our Coffee

Over the years, St. George's has evolved from a number of modes, methods and madnenses of a great many people, into the school it is today. One very special person who has been through the transitions from the very beginning is Robert Farley.

Mr. Farley, we the students of St. George's would like to dedicate this yearbook to you, in recognition of the essential part you have played in the development, growth and realization of St. George's School. In the 25 years you have been here, aside from tackling the mathematics teacher, student advisor, journalism teacher and drama coach, you have managed to share your diverse and sympathetic personality with all of us, alike. Your active participation in Civic theater and Children's theater has mutually enriched both St. George's and Spokane. Your many talents have added much to the culture of our school and your contributions will be a lasting part of St. George's forever.

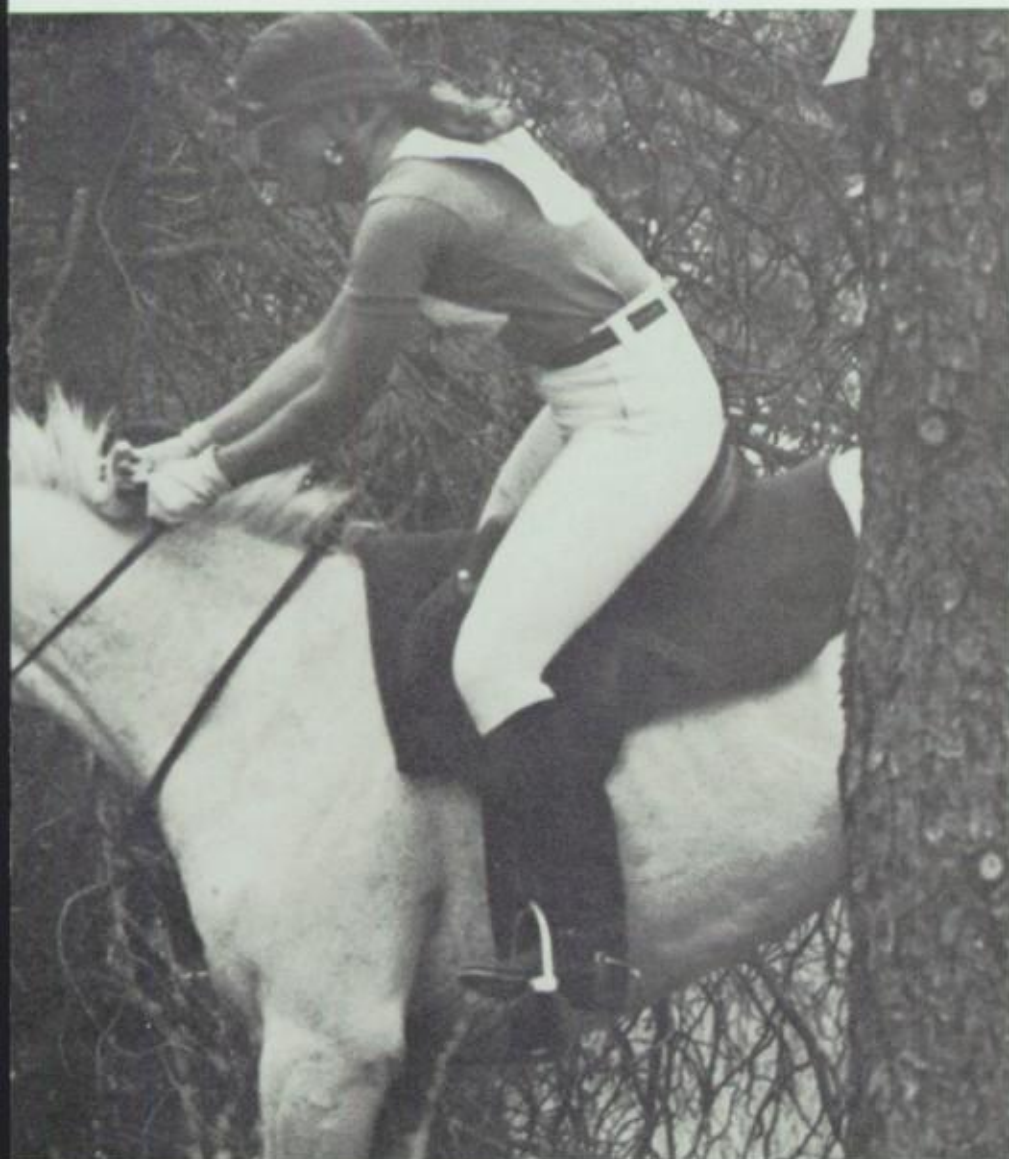

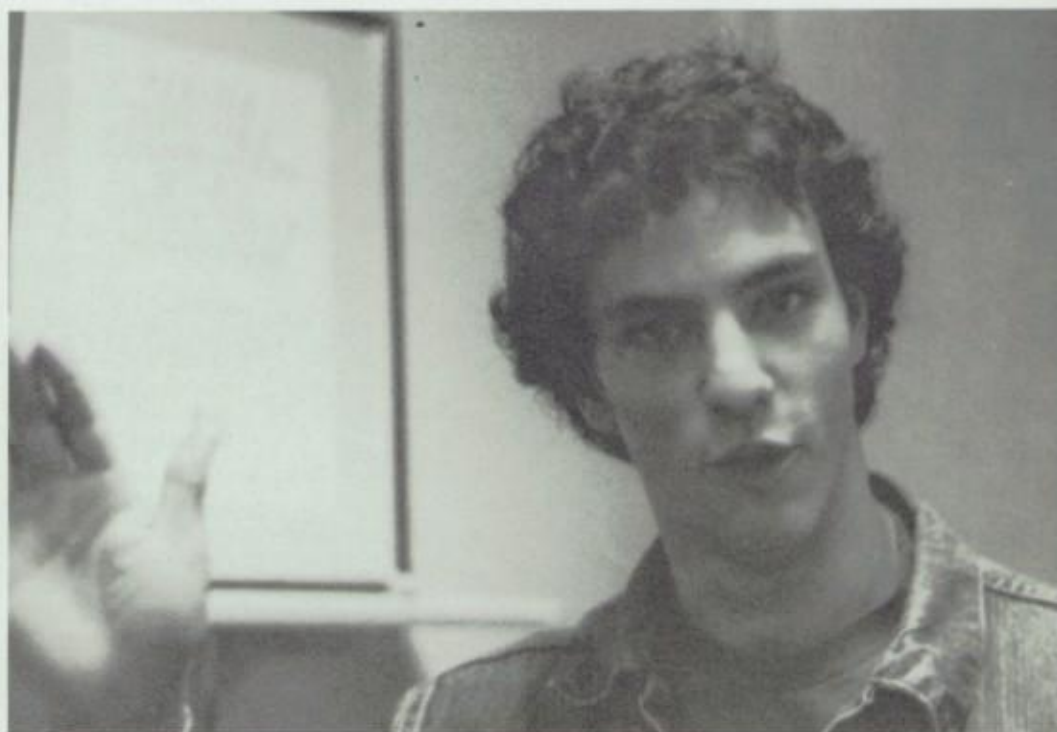

We, the Student Body, wish you the best of everything in the years to come.

Icing on the Cake

We, the Class of 1982, started out with many of our present students back in the seventh grade, a few even before that. We will never forget the double year victory for our class in the Middle School massacre - our record has not been broken yet. From the time we entered the Upper School, we began to divide into many separate groups, and things remained that way until something happened. What used to be a class of groups became a classic group. "From pain and lots of fun, we've reached perfection . . . it wasn't that hard."

-Lisa Hoesel

The Junior sneak, we scrounged for the lounge, to make it a livable place ... The shack shaped up . . . The Junior jocks turned into Senior studs . . . We gained two new additions, Gwen & Dawn . . . We have no doubts about D.N. . . . And we went for espresso highs . . . There were 3:45 wake ups to make it to the Senior parking lot . . . We became Savage House savages . . . April Fools Chuck . . . You're all on detention!

"Food, I want food!"
 "Don't take Alex's cookies! They're burnt."
 "Let's hear about your M.G. again, Wayne."
 "Where's Scott!?! . . . Find Vicky."
 "Don't flinch, Scott. I owe you 41, no, 42 punches."
 "Well, hello there, Bill."
 "Don't hurt hackey."

Actors, musicians, dancers, athletes, philosophers, . . . they set the example in spunk as well as spirit. There is this infamous thing called the "Junior work load" that all of them attempted to handle with varying degrees of success . . .

"Ugh .. I'll never make it through this year."
 "I'll never live to see the day I'm a senior . . ."
 "Help!"

The Junior class had strong members in A.S.B., Greg Lewis as president, Alex Phillips, vice-president, and Cindy Nicolai, secretary. They did a bang-up job with the rummage sale and Junior-Senior prom.

"Sandra, WHAT is in Scott's pocket?"

"A new guy in the sophomore class? ... Is he cute?"

"Hey Julie, did you know that you're a seat cover?"

"Me? I wouldn't ever take your lunch!"

No longer 'dumb frosh' yet not quite upper classmen, the sophomore class was caught in the middle. Yet the class of '84 served as a valuable part of the functioning of the upper school. They began the year by electing Sandra Lee as president, Sandro Leveque as vice-president, and Julie Forsman as secretary. Together, the sophomore class successfully put on the Christmas dance at the Fireside Room at Fort Wright College.

The class involved itself in almost every activity offered and even more. These included debate, soccer, volleyball, track, High School Bowl, pep club, recorder, letterman's club, chorus and golf. Yet, the one activity the total class of '84 participated enthusiastically in was the process of satisfying their endless stomach capacity. Fourth period locker raids and shrieks of excitement over finding a box of animal crackers or even a two week old peanut butter sandwich were all a part of the life of a sophomore.

"Cosmic!"

"Hey Big Guy!"

"Casper the friendly ghost . . ."

Once again locker numbers 91 through 115 were decorated and jammed full with books and food belonging to another freshman class. Old and new St. Georgians alike, they quickly became a group full of friendship, laughter, fun and Dragon spirit. By the end of the second week of school Heidi Caspersen had been elected class president, Matt Quincy, vice-president, and David Halsell, secretary. Freshmen soon became valuable members of both varsity and junior varsity sports teams, and all of the JV cheerleaders were freshmen girls. They took part in and enjoyed many of the other activities of St. George's, including debate, drama, journalism, and even yearbook.

They also went to French dinners, school dances, and plays, helped with the rummage sale, cheered at games, and bought slaves at the senior slave sale. Some participated in ASB spirit days, one of the weirdest being stuffed animal day.

The Middle School began the year with a number of major modifications. To accomodate the record enrollment of 74 (up from 58) walls were moved and a central courtyard created.

In keeping with tradition, the eighth graders managed to wrest victory from the fledgling seventh graders in the seventh annual Massacre. The bi-weekly activity program was renamed Dragon Slayer's Day, and, under Lura Pierce's able guidance, got off to an exciting start. Following an afternoon of preparatory instruction from guest speakers in geology, bird and floral identification and compass work, all Middle Schoolers set forth on an eventful seven mile navigation of the Little Spokane. The day's toll: seven unintentional dunkings, cameras and all. Despite soggy clothing and some quickened heart beats, calm and amusement won out in the end. The Halloween costume parade proved bigger and better than ever. Shannon's rubik's cube suit won top honors for topicality and the three punk sisters, Vicki, Jan and Heather P., stole another prize (if not a few hearts) for thoroughness. Ilse's tooth fairy outfit also won approval for originality.

An Around the World in 80 Dishes culminated the seventh grade year with family dishes, a home-made cookbook and original plays, along with historical bike and foot trips.

Mighty Munchers

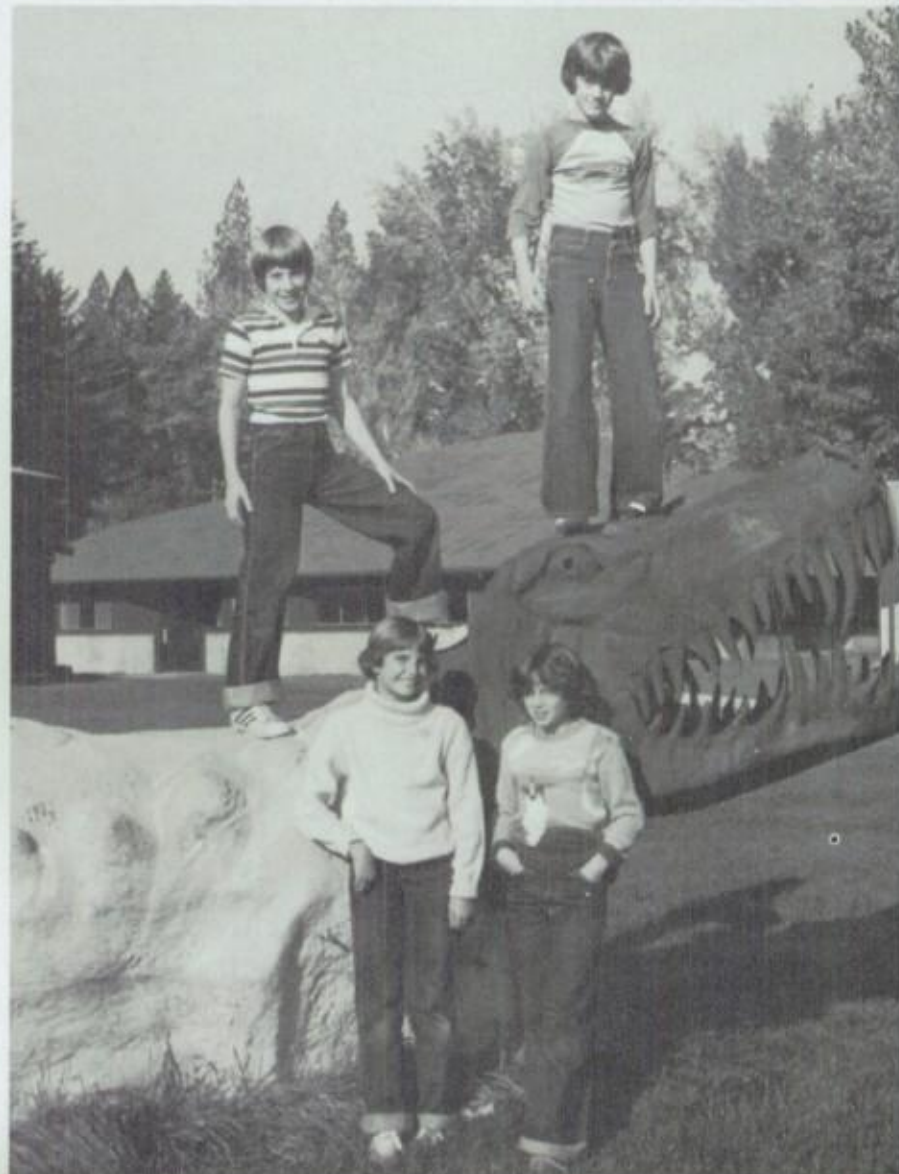

On the Lower School menu the main course was a 7 day field trip to western Washington. On the trip the Lower Schoolers had a late night pizza party in the gym of Bush School in Seattle, went to the Woodland Park Zoo, an aquarium, and the Seattle Science Center. They rode an old steamship, a marine biology boat and a jumbo class Washington ferry (the M.V. Spokane). They camped on the coast, but were rained out. In late November a speaker was invited to talk about antique dolls. They learned all about nutrition in January and later produced a video program. They saw the Rock Roller's presentation at the fairgrounds, and at a farm north of St. George's saw a lambing. Compliments to the chef on the Lower School year!

This year the Learning House has experienced many interesting and creative activities such as a dinosaur unit in which they built models of dinosaur skeletons. They also visited the Indian Cultural Center, Campbell House and showed off their rollerskating skills. During Christmas they made food from Mexico, Scandanavia and other foreign places.

This is the first year that the Learning House has combined all ages in the same classroom. The Learning House teachers say that the students are most cooperative to this arrangement. This is also the first year that the entire learning House has participated in the Jog-A-Thon.

"Jeff, you're a freshman?!?"

"If you guys don't win this game, you're all on detention."

"C'mon, get serious, people."

At times it seemed like this year's team was a burden to the squad, yet their hustle and team play enabled them to overcome that obstacle. Even with seven new starters, the team jelled early. Their comraderie was easily seen in wins over Ferris A, Shadle Park and L.C., as well as in tough losses to Cheney and Gonzaga A. Some young stars were unveiled in sophomore Sandro Leveque, freshman Jeff Lewis and eighth grader Andy Davis. They provide hope for the future and will help juniors Greg Lewis, Scott Grainger and Alex Phillips field a team which will earn the respect of the GSL. The lone senior, John Packard, made worthy contributions to the team.

"Cyone's up — Everyone duck!"

"Denise, don't duck when the ball comes to you. Hit it!"

"Well, you're supposed to get it when I duck."

This year's team was led by seniors Syncione Bresgal and Val Bunker to a 5 and 5 win-loss league record. They recorded victories over Cusick, Curlew, Hunters, Wellpinit and Northport and made the league playoffs. However, Northport took their revenge on the Dragons and defeated them in the first round. With four starters, Mary Nickoloff, Mary Karnowsky, Simonetta Leveque and Peggy Lund, returning, the Lady Dragons should continue to have success on the court.

Monkey Dunkies

Both girls' and boys' Middle School basketball teams, led by Coach Jon Neiser, were highly competitive. All nine girls' games were exciting and the team ended with a 4 win-5 loss record. The boys broke the 50 percent mark with a 5 win-4 loss record in closely contested matches. Girls' team members were: Julia Mantyla, Bronwen Davies, Susan Betts, Becky DeLorenzo, Vicky Sandusky, Alex Peery, Kelly Rowland, Kris Leonard, Noel Rubert, Amy Wantulok, Amy Hutchinson, Chemyn Kodis, Nora Olson. Boys' team members were: Tim Allwine, Craig Besserman, Alex Bond, Dee Farmin, Mike McEttrick, Mike Mickelson, Chad Pepper, Brent Olsen, Mike McLeod, John Humphreys, Kevin Forsman, Frank Betts and Narimman Rahimzadeh.

Sandra and Mary are almost perfect but not quite, right Cori?

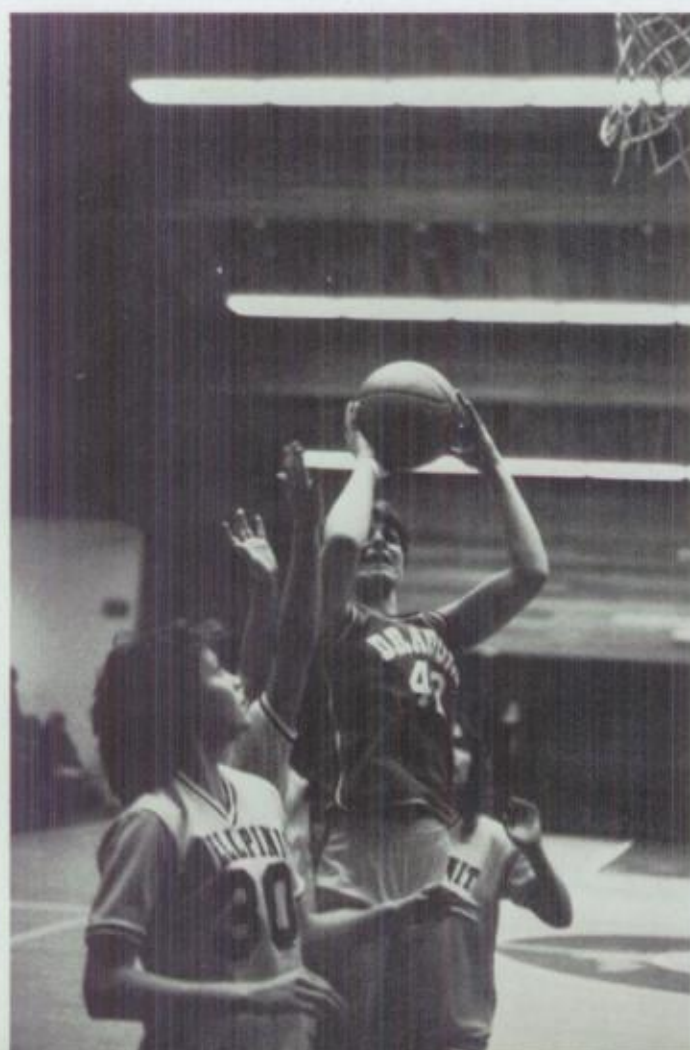

Kathy you just made three fouls in less than three mins! Peggy looks like she's going to pass out! Syncione, that pass just made a dent in the wall! Nett, why do you look like the number twelve?

This year's girls basketball team was one that was linked with constant support and companionship. Although the season began with only six girls, it turned out to be a successful one as three more girls joined and the Dragons demonstrated their power on the court. The season included wins against long time rivals Cusick, Wellpinit and Springdale who had defeated us for five straight years. Yet, besides playing basketball, the team also excelled in another way. They were known for searching out food anywhere, anytime. You could easily find the girls eating Doritos, chocolate and potato chips and guzzling pop. Overall this year proved to be an interesting season, including, the infamous two point third quarter and Sandra's black eye in Incheliem. The girls' basketball team had fun and was a vital part of the basketball arena this year.

Mary, how come Nate gave you all those green M and M's?
That's a fast break Betty?
Hey, Liz, you just stepped on that girl's face!

We are all Schehovic witnesses.
 Oh my gosh, look! There's Nord's clone!
 Keep it down Chuck. There hasn't been a hoop up there for years.
 Mattie, tuck your shirt in.
 Welcome to the Galen Trail Show.
 He scored! Jeff scored!
 Lew . . . Lew . . . Lew . . .

Nate, you had 21 in the first half . . . and only 3 in the second?!?

The year was a surprising one for the S.G. junior varsity team . . . and for the teams that they played. With only six full-time J.V. teammates, they surprised the league with an outstanding performance. Led by the record-shattering scoring of Galen Trail and the rebounding of Jeff Schehovic, Matt Quincy, and Chuck Lund, the young Dragons look promising for seasons to come. Teamed up with the "Dirty Thirties" (Jeff Lewis, Nate Messer, and, Sandro Leveque), the J.V.s should provide Ted Jed Davies with the team of the future.

"John, bring the cards?"
 "Oh, what a face! I'll give that a four!"
 "Incoming flight on Return-A-Brick Airlines."
 "Gee, I sure wish the G.A.'s would come through . . ."
 "Francisco, your mother is a cockroach."
 "Hey, Manuel, is it sideways?"
 "Ok, guys, run the T-out-of-bounds-stack-on-the-weaksides-high-post-22-halfcourt-slam. But keep your poise."
 "Right, Ted, you do dat, and we'll bring de Light."

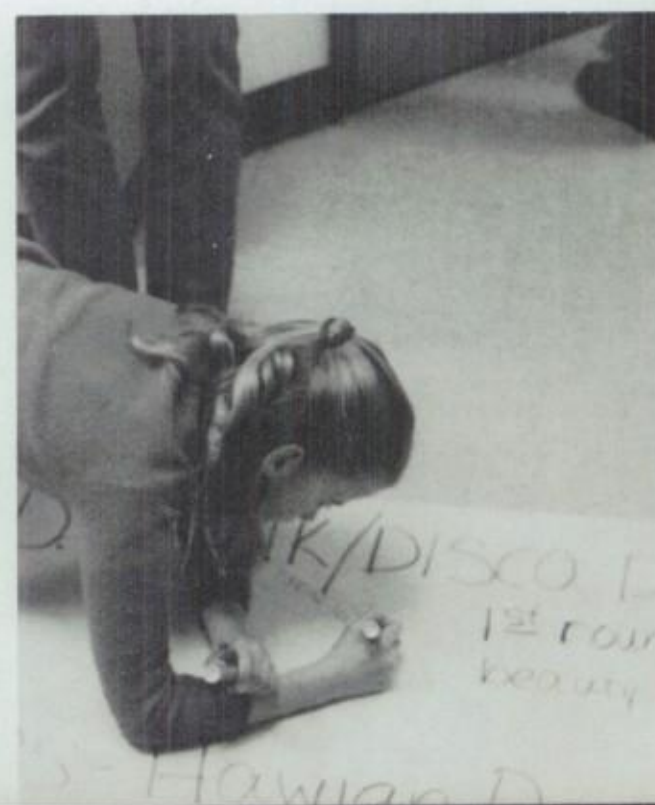

To prepare one deliciously exciting and successful basketball season, one needs the following ingredients:

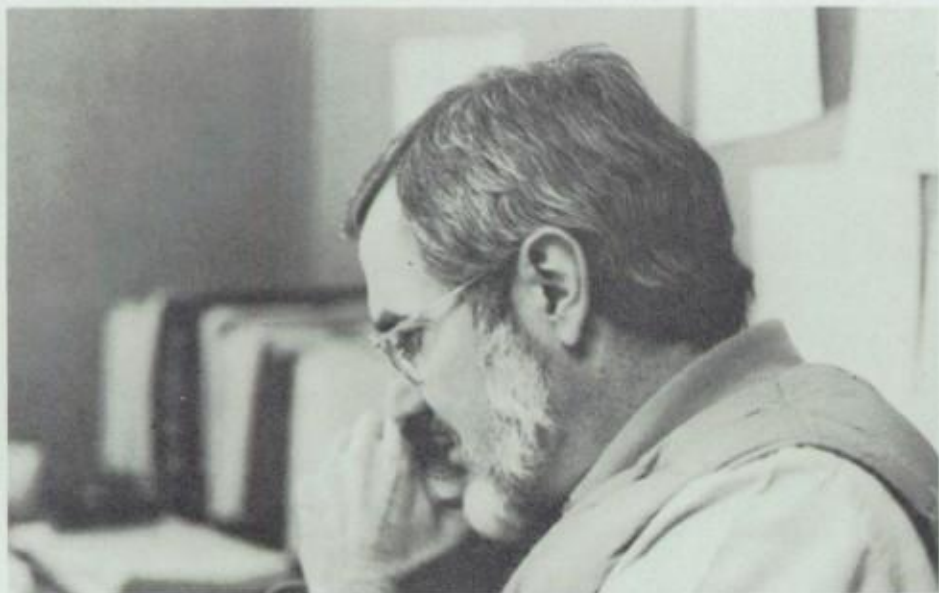

- 1 glass house
- 1 set of invisible cards
- 2 racquetball rooms
- 1 Spokane Flame
- 1 cripple
- 1 perfect frosh (just kidding)
- 1 30 ft. overtime jumpshot
- 2 inappropriate cheers
- 4 "ghetto blasters"
- 4 Hunters Lionettes
- 7 mascots
- 9 varsity cheerleaders
- 12-15 "off the wall" jams
- 60 points on-the-nose
- 100's of loyal fans and, of course,
The Hound!!

"Take off, you hosehead!"

The class officers were responsible for many of the events that took place this year. The seniors began the year with the annual senior slave sale, which brought in 300 dollars for the Sadie Hawkins Dance. The remainder of the funds, along with money made at the chili feed, went to the purchase of a senior tape deck. Later in the year a skiing trip was organized.

The juniors cooperated to pull together the rummage sale, lasagne feed and the prom with great success. The sophomores put on the Christmas Dance and the Freshmen coordinated the spring dance.

Every day on our campus you can hear singing, strains of Bach or Pachelbel, string instruments humming away, and lots of other kinds of music due to our outstanding music programs. Students begin in the Learning House where they may participate in Suzuki classes with instructors Monica Valentine and Beverly Attwood. Under Greta Rizzuti, Lower School students learn through the Orff method which, through emphasis on movement, speech, singing, and playing special Orff instruments, builds students' basic skills while imparting joy in creating music. Lower Schoolers, Middle and Upper Schoolers as well, can participate in recorder and choral ensembles. With all this happening, you can sit back and enjoy music any time!

Resolved: That the federal government should establish minimum educational standards in elementary and secondary schools in the U.S. "Eric, tell us more gossip about those Mead debaters."

"Now, Judge, a problem clearly exists. The negative team is the result of the neglected area of teacher incompetency!"

"Mary and Eric, how's the West Valley connection?"

"Sandra, which debater from N.C. are you in love with?"

This year the debate teams consisted of a unique bunch of individuals switching partners, writing up cases and cutting and pasting evidence the night before a big tournament. It was a typical scenario within the debate world at St. George's. Yet over all, it was a year of victories, defeats and sheer fun. With Cindy Nicolai taking third in Junior Oratory and Ward Woodke and Pat Codd both placing as finalists in Senior Impromptu, the team proved to balance wins in individual speech events as well as policy debate. The school year of 1981-1982 also introduced the area of Lincoln Douglas debate — ethics debate involving only one person per competition — in which Lisa Hoesel displayed true talent.

Taking the season as a whole, the Dragons again strengthened their status of being fine speakers.

"Nancy, I love your shoes!"

"Scott, if you keep threatening the judge, we won't win a single round!"

"Motor Mouth Sandra is at it again!"

After our ritual locker raids behind Lorelee's back, we got down to serious mega yearbook action. Food was an important part of our meetings to get us in the theme mood. Lots of Za, salam, and applesauce to nousrih our creative juices. Pica by pica, we ate our way through the year . . . with a few minor technicalities . . . Pictures! I said 50 not 15! . . . Who wants to run down to Wirsches? . . . What do you mean he left! . . . Doesn't anybody in this school want to develop negs! . . . Yes, Mrs. Hill, I know I'm the laziest editor you've ever had . . . but I'll pull through . . . This is the best schmucking yearbook we've ever had . . . Zane and Marza's Hunt and Peck, Inc., . . . No food! Mrs. Hill! . . . You don't cook za with the cardboard underneath, especially at 500°. . . Who's house is the party, I mean the yearbook meeting at? . . . I WANT TO LEAVE NOW!

Where's your article! . . . we're only two months late! . . . Pictures! We need more pictures! . . . We can cut the article anywhere, nobody will read it . . . It's either in the white cadillac or the black Supra . . . Tom! No, you can't write an article about a finger eating pencil sharpener. . . . Yeah Chuck, take advantage of your authority, O.K.! John Harcus already left. The Page faced many problems starting out this year. First of all, an editor had not yet been decided upon, and problems arose when Mr. Farley, the Page advisor, became involved in a drama production. During that period Mr. Nicolai filled in as assistant advisor. As the year progressed things began to look brighter. Chuck Lund and Brook Ellingwood took over duties as co-editors.

The Manuscript

The St. George's "Manuscript" includes work from all levels of the school and allows for the creative efforts of any budding author or artist to be published. Students submit their creations to the advisors, editors, and staff who then select the pieces which will be published in the "Manuscript". During the summer, the magazine is printed and put together then distributed during the fall. Much credit should be given to Mrs. Paukert who spends her summer afternoons typing and arranging the pages.

The Fantasticks

Entertainment . . . food for the soul. Each year Mr. Farley and his Drama Department succeed in whetting our dramatic appetites with play after delicious play, and this year was no exception. The offering was THE FANTASTICKS, and it turned out to be a fully satisfying repast.

The Cast:

Hucklebee	Kris Puddy
Bellomy	Ted Myhre
Henrietta	Carol Herbert
Maude	Jackie Barnes
The Mute.....	Sandra Lee
Mimes	Chemyn Kodis, Michelle McEttrick
Chorus	Garrett Kimberly, Cindy Kirkman
	Rosalind Lawson, Raissa Livers, Lisa Nicolai

Dessert Theatre

The Drama Department produced a spring Dessert Theatre which included three one act plays. These were "Box for One," "Funeral Tea" and "The Mice Have Been Drinking Again." The casts were, respectively: Brook Ellingwood, Wayne Maynard and Tracy Sherwood; Kris Puddy, Cathie Trapp, Heidi Caspersen, Kate Blair and Raissa Livers; Wayne Maynard, DeDee DeHaven, Kari Stejer and Tracy Sherwood.

Spirits

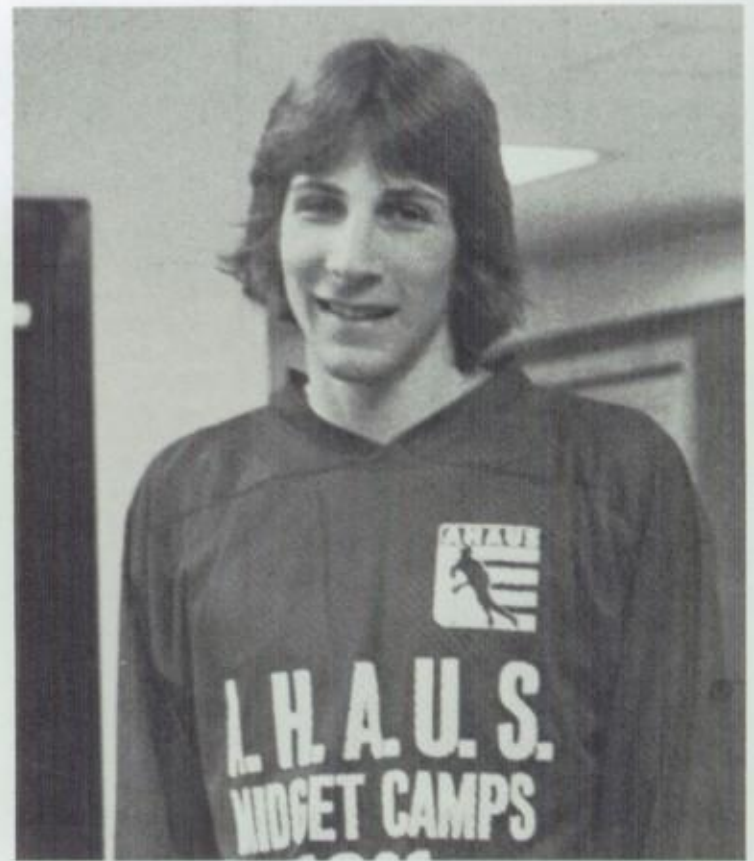

This year the task of varsity cheerleading was shared by two squads. The original team was Jenny Hamel, Katy Barnard, Cindi Nicolai and Paige Price. The second semester Heidi Caspersen, Lisa Nicolai, Kara Miller, Michelle McEttrick and Cori Danielson led the cheers. As usual, a few frenzied practices, sore throats, long bus rides and unbearably hot uniforms, were part of the work of the Dragon Cheerleaders . . . But it was all enjoyed! Eat 'em up . . . Dragons!!!

Above Right: Bobby Jones . . . The next "Great Gretzky". He travelled all over the Northwest and Canada with his team, the Spokane Flames. During the '81-'82 season he broke the single game scoring record with 6 goals. Colo. College, Yale, and Brown Universities have courted him. Bobby was one of three players from the Northwest to be invited to train at the Olympic camp last summer.

Above: S.A.T. honor winners . . . Lisa Hoesel-Commended Student, Dawn Fields-Finalist, Ray Bolen-Semifinalist, Mike Ross-Semifinalist. Dawn is also a competitive swimmer for the Y.M.C.A. team. Through the season she placed very well in all of her competitions, winning many awards. Mike Ross received his green belt in Karate last February.

Right: Jenny Welk . . . shows her horse. She has won various awards with her blooming talent including some 1st's & 3rd's.

Left: Jane Patterson . . . is the single member of the Spokane Diving Team. She trains at Shadle H.S. and at E.W.U. under the E.W.U.'s coach. She plans to pursue her talent in college.

Right: The Spokane Olympic Gymnastics Academy olympic training program members. Kassie Kelley, Tracy Shoemaker, Shannon Slack, Kim Davis, Janna McKrosky. These students work out seven hours a day, six days a week.

Above: Kari Stejer ... 7-UP student of the week.

We Like Nachos

Left: Robin Kendall . . . she likes nachos but more importantly loves to ride her horse. Her '81 season proved that she has mastered all the skills it takes to be at the top of her league in three day eventing. Robins goal is to be a member of the Olympic team in '84. Below: Marya Granger . . . Ultra Spaz '82.

Above: Kris Puddy . . . was invited to spend two weeks at the Centrum Program in Port Townsend, WA. for both her drama and artistic talents. Centrum is a state program for students gifted in fine arts.

After defeating Springdale and Wellpinit in the Panorama League Tournament, the Dragons advanced to the District Tournament, the first SG team to do so in eight years. There they struggled against Bi-County champs Liberty and Inchelium, which eliminated them from further action. However, they still finished the third best team in St. G history. Bill Wardian and Syncione Bresgal were selected League All-Opponent, and Bob Jones, Steve DeVleming, and Peggy Lund received Honorable Mentions. Bob also made the District All-Tourney Team. And Mitch Gaber, left off the JV page by mistake, was named Most Valuable Cripple.

The 1982 ski trip proved to be the best ducking (quack!) trip ever, in the history of St. Georges. The five days we spent at Red Mt. was characterized by mixer, suds, and midnight barbecues on the balcony. The skiing? . . . Well . . . It was superb! How can you beat "Vaurnet Days" and 8" of powder? Not much ZZZZZZZZZZ, but a lot of fun! . . . Bob where are we? We're at the border already . . . why didn't you warn me? $12 + 12 = 24 + 30 = 54$. . . that's metric eh? Where's the bottle opener? Who hung bunny roo-roo!?! 2.4 seconds??? O.K. who broke the bed ? Robin! Don't develope that picture!!! Stay away from me! Let's ski the pooder eh? TAKE OFF TO THE GREAT WHITE NORTH!!!! YOU HOSERS!!!!!!!!!!!!

The Whine List

Dragon Slayer activities offered a veritable smorgasbord bi-weekly to Middle Schoolers. Choices ranged from fruitcake baking, banner making, studying taxidermy, testing hot tubs and saunas to visiting a satellite information center, Fairchild Air Force Base, a veterinarian's clinic, observing a CAT-Scanner and producing The Louis Davenport puppet show.
